

Gordon Gee has returned to the University of the American Dream.

In Ohio.

The State of Perfect Balance

E. Gordon Gee is a man of ideas, and he believes that The Ohio State University—the largest and most comprehensive university in America—is on the threshold of extraordinary achievement. OSU is generating ideas that accelerate economic opportunity and create jobs, while producing tomorrow's engineers, doctors and business leaders... the best and brightest in the nation.

Dr. Gee calls Ohio State “the front door to the American Dream,” and he brings enormous energy, passion and enthusiasm to his work. To him, being president of The Ohio State University is not a job, but a calling. And when the university called offering a second term, he knew he had to leave the prestigious position he held at the time and return to the state he considers home.

While the demands of his position could make enjoying a balanced lifestyle nearly impossible elsewhere, Gee has found his balance through simple interaction with Ohio's people. As he travels the state, he's greeted by open hearts, open minds and tremendous support that allow him to fulfill his calling without sacrificing personal happiness.

Find your balance at OhioMeansBusiness.com.

“I came home to a place where I love my work,
I love the people, and I love my life.”

E. Gordon Gee, J.D., Ed.D.
President
The Ohio State University

Ted Strickland, Governor
Lee Fisher, Lt. Governor

Ohio
The State of Perfect Balance